What defines “success”?

- Success is subjective
  - Depends on definition and perspective
  - Success criteria varies (entering treatment, completing treatment, etc.)

What factors into success?

- Multiple factors are at play
  - Families often seek assurance of success
  - Focus on understanding the process over success rates

Success in addiction treatment

- Evolution of definitions for “success”
  - Varying opinions
  - Harm reduction vs. complete abstinence

Success for families

- The family's goals
  - The willingness to accept different outcomes
  - Intervention goals beyond substance use

What is the role of an interventionist?

- Educate families on the process
  - Help increase likelihood of positive outcomes
  - Address what's beyond their control
  - Helping families define their success
  - Addressing behaviors, not only substance use

What is an intervention?

- It is NOT about controlling your loved one
  - Learning to let go
  - The family's role

The importance of follow through

- Success linked to following suggested changes
  - Misconceptions about AA and other programs
  - Importance of commitment to treatment plans

The impact of family recovery

- Healthier families lead to better outcomes
- Long-term success and family follow through
- Overcoming victim mentality, avoiding blame, and embracing accountability
- Recognizing progress over time and past attempts as steps toward success
